

I'm a mother, wife, City Commissioner, Public Policy Director, and Community Organizer running for City Council to be your neighborhood advocate at City Hall. Since graduating from Long Beach State, I've dedicated myself to improving our neighborhoods:

As a City Commissioner I've worked to end domestic-violence, supported the anti-human trafficking taskforce and worked to deliver a community policing model to Long Beach.

As a Public Policy Director, I've led by passing an equal pay ordinance to protect women, a higher minimum wage for hotel workers, and protected our neighborhoods from parking impacted projects.

As a Community Organizer, I've trained hundreds through Long Beach Rising to organize for safer neighborhoods, reductions in pollution from the port, and repairing our sidewalks and roads.

I'm running to build a better Long Beach – with safer, cleaner neighborhoods that offer everyone economic opportunities. To do that residents must have access and actively participate in shaping neighborhood-based solutions to the problems we face every day. That's why my door will always be open to you.

I'm proud to be endorsed by Supervisor Sheila Kuehl, City Councilmember Rex Richardson, Porter Gilberg, small business owners and hundreds of local neighborhood leaders. I hope to earn your vote.
