

VIVIAN WILLIAMS MALAUULU

Age: 42

Occupation: Community College Professor

A career educator, I am a Professor at Long Beach City College who has taught university, community college, and high school students for more than 20 years.

I didn't speak any English when I arrived in California as a young child from Central America, but worked very hard and successfully achieved a B.A. Degree from California State University Northridge, a Master's Degree in Educational Administration from California State University Dominguez Hills, and four K-14 teaching credentials.

My husband and I are longtime residents of the Wrigley neighborhood in West Long Beach where we have chosen to raise our four school-aged children. Active in our community, I chair the Long Beach Commission on Youth and Children, serve as a YMCA of Greater Long Beach Board Member, and am very involved in youth sports and our church. I am also a registered ILWU longshore worker at the twin ports complex.

I am proudly endorsed by the faculty and classified employees at Long Beach City College, the California Teachers Association, and over 40 different Long Beach area labor organizations, local elected officials, and community leaders.

I strongly believe the students, faculty, employees, alumni, and our community deserve a voice on our College Board and respectfully request your vote on April 12.
