And Finally...

Name the Location

The attached photo is from a Long Beach Public Works social media posting ten days ago. It was used in an announcement that the City of Long Beach is hiring tree trimmers. While the location was not posted, we immediately recognized it as Whaley Park. Of all the possible citywide locations available, we appreciate Public Works choosing a CD4 tree photo. Specifically, the location is Jacaranda tree-lined San Anselme Avenue just north of Atherton Street. Ongoing maintenance of our urban forest is a critical component to keeping these trees healthy and beautiful. When tree health is compromised, it may be necessary to remove the tree as is happening in El Dorado Park Area III next week. Sometimes trees can look perfectly healthy with green leaves but still have issues. As illustrated in the attached video taken at Stearns Park last summer, looks can be deceiving.
